Agriculture School Okayed

A School of Agriculture, with majors in three concentrations, was approved for West Texas State University Monday by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Dr. James P. Cornette, university president, said the change is effective Sept. 1 with Dr. Charles M. Smallwood as dean.

The change elevates the present Department of Agriculture in the College of Arts and Sciences to separate school status. Smallwood, 44, has headed the department since coming to the university in 1958.

The School of Agriculture becomes the fifth separate school at West Texas State. The others are College of Arts and Sciences, School of Business, School of Fine Arts and School of Teacher Education.

Dr. Walter H. Juniper, academic vice president, said the proposed new school would have departments of animal science, plant science and agricultural business and economics. Majors would be offered in the same areas leading to the existing Bachelor of Science Degree, he said.

"We are pleased at the approval," Cornette said. "A separate School of Agriculture will help us render great service to agriculture in the region and to the state.

"The approval culminated years of outstanding work by the department of agriculture and by Dr. Smallwood," the president added.

West Texas State becomes only the fourth university in the state with a separate School of Agriculture. The others are Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Texas A&I.

In the university's application to the Coordinating Board for the School of Agriculture, Juniper said:

"The region served by West Texas State University has developed into the most dynamic agricultural area in the United States and the world.

"Historically, the specific options of agriculture at the university have been altered to the needs of the region. It is our desire to develop the agricultural educational endeavors to those in demand by the students and industry of the region.

"The agricultural economy of the region demands new emphasis on education in agriculture for the Panhandle and South Plains."

Under the department of agriculture, the university offered a major of agriculture with options in animal science, plant science and agriculture business. It also had pre-veterinary and pre-agriculture education programs.

Smallwood said the two programs would be continued to prepare students who will continue work toward degrees in those

Drug Abuse Eyed At WT

BY CARROLL WILSON

A drug abuse seminar for area educators and parents began on the West Texas State University campus Wednesday morning with discussions from a doctor, a psychiatrist, a lawyer and a former drug addict.

A standing-room only crowd—most of them of the over-30 generation— listened intently as the four speakers told of the effects of drugs on the human body, the human mind and a person's criminal record.

Most fascinating, however, was the direct and frank discussion of how drugs ruined her life by Nancy, a former drug addict who kicked the habit seven years ago.

Other speakers during the morning session were Michael J. Hinton, assistant criminal district attorney for Randall County; Dr. Dewey Yeager, a physician from Amarillo; and Dr. Mitchell Jones, an Amarillo psychiatrist.

During the afternoon sessions Wednesday the educators and college students were to hear of the dilemma of drug abuse, counseling with the user, how to identify drugs and a forum of high school students.

The conference is to continue through today with speeches by Dr. George R. Edison of Salt Lake City, Utah; Mike Hinton, assistant district attorney here; Dr. Prentice Caraway, a professor of biology at WTSU.

All lectures are in the student union building ballroom.

Stories on the speeches from Wednesday's morning sessions are below.

NANCY

Nancy is 30. She doesn't really look it, she's pretty and could probably pass for a college age girl.

But, Nancy's 30 years have been packed with all the trauma and drama of a television thriller.

She told her story, a story of drugs, prostitution, theft, prison and most of all, heartbreak, to educators gathered at West Texas State Wednesday morning.

Her story, basically, is the story of drugs. The others, prostitution, theft, prison and heartbreak, were all simply results of a life absorbed in drugs.

"I started smoking pot (marijuana) when I was 13 and I went from that to pills to just about anything I could get my hands on," she said. "I was a heroin addict at 15. And, you better get prepared for a shock. I got that heroin from a pusher in Amarillo."

Nancy said she fell in love when she was 13 with a man in Amarillo who started her on drugs. She was arrested when she was 16 trying to

Scare techniques will not work to keep our children from turning to drugs, Dr. Dewey Yeager, an Amarillo physician told educators at WTSU Wednesday morning.

"Present facts to them and then be adult enough to let the kids make up their own minds," he said.

Dr. Yeager said there are four types of drug user: the beginner, the periodic user, the compulsive user and the ritualistic.

He told the educators that to be able to deal effectively with young drug users, they must know several things.

One, drug abusers make up a sub-culture in this country, and they want to keep it a sub-culture. Two, there is good research and there is bad research. Most good research is reported by reputable medical associations. Third, communication is a difficult problem with young users because there are contradictory reports on the effects of drugs. Fourth, there is a 30 per cent placebo effect with any medicine. In Between 50 and 75 per cent of the high school students interviewed in a recent survey have experimented with marijuana, Dr. Mitchell Jones, an Amarillo psychiatrist, said Wednesday.

Speaking to area educators at a drug abuse seminar, Dr. Jones said those who have tried LSD are far fewer.

Dr. Jones, who deals with drug-related disorders in Amarillo, said often the young person who is in trouble with drugs has many related problems psychologically.

Many times, he said, the young person is not accepted as a part of a social group. He has difficulty with interpersonal relationships, is a poor student and feels left out of school activities.

So, he said, many seek the drug sub-culture. Many have told him, he said, they felt a part of that group.

Some who have gotten in trouble with drugs are basically dependent people. They tend to be dependent

HINTON

Randall County assistant district attorney Mike Hinton told area educators at a drug abuse seminar Wednesday he would not object to the lowering of the minimum sentence for those convicted of possession of marijuana.

Hinton addressed the group on the legal aspects of drug abuse.

"I would not object to lowering the minimum on possession of marijauana to take care of extreme cases, first offenders particularly," he said. "But, I object to lowering the maximum on any drug case--particularly the life sentence for a pusher."

Hinton said the most effective method of dealing with students on the subject of drug abuse is through education. And, he had several suggestions on the best way to approach such discussions.

"Know your subject and tell it like it is," he said. "If you can, arrange to have an officer of a narcotics squad

Air Pollution Cited In Area As WT Teach-In Continues

The air in the Panhandle may be relatively clean at present but we cannot afford to allow it to become polluted before steps are taken to ensure its purity, a state official told students at West Texas State University Monday.

Charles Barden, executive secretary of the Texas Air Control Board, said pollutants created in the Panhandle—but which do not hover here due to winds—are simply moving elsewhere in the world to add themselves to the Earth's air pollution.

Barden was key speaker for a week-long Environmental Teach-In at WTSU. Films and film strips highlighted the week's activities through Wednesday.

He said despite controversy over the effects of pollution, legislators are more and more accepting the concept that the earth is simply a small spaceship traveling through space with a closed environment. Pollutants do not leave the atmosphere.

He noted that scientists have found pollutants in Antarctica.

In an interview following his speech to more than 200 students, Barden said he flew over the Amarillo area last fall and "saw quite a thick, dense haze.

"You don't have the problems here because of the elevation, the winds as they do in some industrial areas," he said. "But, we can't afford to let the situation here deteriorate. The potential problem is here."

Speaking to the students, Barden said industry may be getting more than their share of the blame for the pollution problem.

"Industry has said to us 'get the standards, give us regulations and we'll meet them,' " he said. "We've done that and Texas has taken the lead in the nation."

Even with Texas' strict air control regulations, Barden said he feels industry will not relocate to other states where guidelines are less tough.

Barden said for years, the nation's industry has been involved in quantity production. Annually, we have seven million cars to dispose of, 20 million tons of paper, 48 billion cans and 26 billion bottles and jars.

"Our nation needs to achieve a switch in values—from the quantitative to the qualitative," he said. "I feel such a shift may

What If A Tornado Was En Route To City?

Tornado season is here.

Last weekend, tornadoes caused wide-spread destruction to various cities in the Panhandle. At least one storm cell containing tornaidc winds passed over the Canyon area before a funnel struck in Pampa.

What would you do if a tornado were approaching the city? What would the city government do to warn you of the danger?

While funnel clouds were reported near Tulia and Happy last Friday night, firemen and others in the city government were stationed at various points south of the city limits. Their job—to watch the skies for impending danger.

From the beginning of the storm until about 3 a.m. Saturday, they watched.

Had a tornado been spotted approaching Canyon, the men would have provided early warning.

Fire Capt. Joe Rice said Canyon residents will be warned of an approaching tornado by fire sirens located in each section of the city.

Eight blasts on the sirens indicates impending tornadic danger. Six blasts indicates all clear.

If a tornado watch is imposed on the area by the U.S. Weather Bureau, Rice said the initial phases of Baker One, the city's disaster plan, are put into effect.

Department heads of the city are alerted to the danger and placed on stand-by.

Firemen are alerted. They are ready on a moment's notice to disperse the city's fire equipment throughout town to prohibit the destruction of all fire-fighting capability by a tornado.

Constant contact is kept by the sky-watchers with the Randall County Sheriff's Office and the U.S. Weather Bureau. Neblett Hospital is kept abreast of the latest developments.

For residents of Canyon, Rice said they should remain at home in case of an approaching tornado. He urged that residents should not drive cars in an effort to see the tornado.

"That happened a couple of years ago and it was really a mess," he said. Clogging of streets by curiosity seekers enhances the danger surrounding a tornado.

Rice said when the eight blasts are sounded on the fire sirens, local residents should seek shelter. The best shelter to guard against injury, he said, is a storm cellar.

"If you don't have a cellar, the next best place is a basement," he said. "The third best place if you're at home, is the bathtub."

Rice said if a bathtub must be used as shelter, everyone should lie flat in the tub with a mattress placed over their bodies.

If the tub is not big enough to hold the entire family, shelter should be sought under heavy pieces of furniture.

Rice warned that if in a car when the alarm sounds, the occupants should in no event remain in the car. They should seek shelter in a barrow ditch or culvert.

Remember In Case of Tornado

Eight blasts on fire siren means approaching tornado.

If at home:
Go to storm cellar, or;
Go to basement, or;
Get in bathtub and place mattress over the top, or;
Get under heavy pieces of furniture;

If in automobile:
Get out of the car and seek shelter in barrow ditch or culvert.

Do not get in car or try to outrun a tornado.

Farmers Ask Road In County

A dozen area farmers met with commissioners court Monday to request the paving of a mile of road in the northwest part of Randall County.

Spokesman for the group was Lee Mason.

The Randall County portion of the road is unpaved for one mile east of the Deaf Smith County Line. Deaf Smith County is now in the process of paving its portion of the road.

Mason pointed out that the road is used to haul farm products including grain sor-

Anderson, Blaut, Thomas, Howle, Cole Honored At WTSU Athletic Banquet

Troy Anderson, stand-out starter last season for the Buffaloes, received the President's Award Tuesday night during the annual All-Sports banquet at West Texas State University.

University President James P. Cornette presented the trophy to Anderson.

Dr. Cornette said recipient of the award is selected annually by his teammates and coaches on the basis of citizenship, cooperation, attitude and leadership.

The Basketball Fighting Heart Award was presented to Ron Howle, starting guard high-jumper for the Buffs during the cage season. Howle received the trophy from Ray Lumry, president of the Canyon Rotary Club.

Another short but tough basketball starter at WTSU, David Cole, received the Lions Club senior athletic academic award from Lions President Don Vars. Vars said the award, which was given this year for the first time, goes to the senior athlete with the highest scholastic average.

Recipients of the two Kleinschmidt Awards, presented annually by Wes Kleinschmidt, were Dale Blaut, guard for the basketball team and Duane Thomas, fullback for the football Buffs. Thomas was not present to receive the award.

In introducing his team to the banquet crowd, Head Coach Joe Kerbel said Dag Azam and Billy Lantow had been named co-captains for the 1969-70 Buff football squad.

Basketball captains for the season are David Cole, Dale Blaut, James McCloud and Ron Howle.

Tennis captain is Scott Pool and track captains are Jack Moore and Gary Goodin.

Jack C. Curtice, director of athletics at the University of California at Santa Barbara was guest speaker for the banquet.

Curtice said he believes some of the best leaders in the nation are athletes. They have the ability to have self-discipline. They know right from wrong.

Speaking briefly about motivation factors in human development, Curtice said parents can do much to motivate their children to pursue the right course in society.

Too many parents, he said, feel there is nothing too good for their child. They give their children everything.

"They think they're getting his love," he said. "There's only one kind of love, that is got through discipline and respect."

Curtice retired this year as head football coach at the California college. He coached the Buffaloes in 1940 and 1941.

After leaving West Texas, he coached at Texas Western, University of Utah and Stanford before moving to the University of California.

by Troy Martin FROM THE CANYON RIM

The Canyon News predicted several months ago that an attempt would be made to take over the anti-pollution movement by the same group which organized the Vietnam War moratorium.

Of course, the moratorium movement had its roots deep in the new left.

Our prediction came true.

In December I attended a moratorium gathering in the West Texas State University Student Union Building. One of the moratorium organizers, John Greene, was a featured speaker.

Tuesday night I attended an environment teach-in and heard the same young man narrate a film on pollution in the Panhandle.

The film showed raw sewerage being dumped into Tierra Blanca Creek at Hereford. It also showed pollution potential of the feed yards in Hereford.

I think we can all agree that the pollution is here. Something is killing the fish along the Tierra Blanca. Something has made Buffalo Lake little more than an open cess pool.

This newspaper warned as long as seven years ago of what was in store for Buffalo Lake.

Pollution of the air, soil and water by exhaust, smoke stacks and oil spills is not something that will go away just because we want it to.

The fact is that if something is not done to control pollution we may all suffocate or be poisoned by our environment within the next few years.

Now the "silent majority" can remain silent on the subject of pollution and see the initiative pass into the hands of those who undoubtedly will use it as a beach head for one more attack on "the establishment" and American business.

Or the people can join in seeking solutions to this problem which is growing in importance by the hour.

To use one of his own words, Dr. Emmit Smith is an "energizer" on the West Texas State University campus.

Although he has had superb backing from Dr. James P. Cornette and Financial Vice-President Virgil Henson as well as from Vice-President Walter Juniper, Dr. Smith has been a prime mover in WTSU progress for the past several years.

This week 26 proposals were presented to the Coordinating Board. Dr. Smith's proposal for a school of agriculture was not only approved but described as one of the best ever presented to the board.

Dr. Smith is in charge of research and development for the university. Under his leadership a school of fine arts was secured a year ago.

He has secured permission from a sub-committee to submit to the coordinating board a program for a baccalaureate degree in nursing.

He and Dr. Cornette persuaded the Killgore Foundation to build Killgore Research Center here. Largely through Dr. Smith's efforts the Amarillo Area Foundation has appointed a subcommittee to study the possibility of enlarging the research center.

This would make room available for agricultural and helium research.

If helium research comes to WTSU it will be mostly through the efforts of Dr. Smith who has hit upon the idea of combining helium and pollution research since both deal with gases.

Dr. Smith was the university's representative to the Committee of '67. He played a key role in molding the committee's report.

Much of what the committee recommended has already been implemented.

He has in the mill a doctoral program in education as well as many other programs which will lend to the accelerating progress at West Texas State University.

Our World

BY ANN BROWN

One of the incredible inconsistencies of the American people is the profound belief that one is supposed to get married and live happily ever after. Even a girl who has been miserable since the day she was born is usually quite certain that a wedding ring on her finger will immediately usher her into the realm of eternal bliss.

All any girl needs to do to discover that marriage does not bring divine happiness is to take a look at her mother. Apparently, the average girl is able to blind herself completely to the facts of life so obvious in her parents' marriage. Even current divorce rates fail to enlighten young lovers.

Any normal adult should be aware that no institution can bestow happiness. Certainly, some situations are more conducive to happiness than others, but joy comes from within.

Any time a man marries a woman to rescue her from a miserable situation, whether it is in her parents' home or in a bad marriage, he can be reasonably sure she will be just as miserable in his home. If one wants a happy marriage, one should learn to be happy before a marriage, and seek a happy partner.

Regardless of the favorable circumstances, however, marriage does not eliminate the troubles, trials, and problems common to man. It is true that marriage usually changes one's problems somewhat, but, like divorce, it is likely to exchange one set of problems for more complicated ones.

Happiness is not dependent on wealth, education, or station in life; but rather on one's own attitudes, choices, and conduct. The best of intentions make little difference; life usually rewards or punishes one for performance.

Inasmuch as no one expects to be blissfully happy outside of marriage, it is incomprehensible that anyone should expect a wedding ceremony to perform the desired miracle. Wedded bliss, like mother instinct, is vastly overrated.

Successful motherhood requires sacrifice, dedication, and a lot of hard work. And children seldom live up to parents' fond expectations any better than the parents lived up to their own parents' ideals.

Life can, however, bring joy even beyond one's expectations. Any time one sincerely attempts to find his place in the divine scheme of things, he should realize that the world is likely to give back to him exactly what he puts into it. If he makes an honest effort to be a blessing to his fellowman, he will probably find life very rewarding.

And inasmuch as marriage enlarges one's opportunities for service and productivity, wedding vows should increase the happiness of adults.

Of course, emotional maturity cannot always be equated with chronological age or intellectual development, but marriage certainly involves more responsibilities than children are capable of assuming. Marriage is for adults.

And one thing adults should be aware of is that life has problems. It is not a man's problems, however, that create unhappiness, but his reaction to his problems.

If the miserable marriage partner would indulge in some honest introspection as to his degree of happiness prior to marriage, and then allow his mate a fault for each of his own shortcomings, he would probably be quite content with his marital situation.

Although, wedding rings do not work miracles or make saints out of sinners, the Creator did not intend that man should live alone. So, in spite of all the problems involved, one's best chance for happiness usually lies in carefully and prayerfully seeking a suitable mate and then doing one's best to making that companion happy.

When one marries, one assumes a tremendous responsibility. Duty well-done does not always bring happiness, but it is the best substitute available.

Funeral services for Rev. Winfield Raymond Matsler, 82, will be conducted at 2 p.m. today, Thursday, at the First Christian Church here.

Rev. Matsler retired as minister of the First Christian Church in Canyon in 1957 after 50 years as a minister. Since retirement he has served as interim pastor in New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

He was a member of the First Christian Church of Canyon and the Canyon Rotary Club.

Services will be conducted by Rev. Ivan Adams, pastor of the First Christian Church here; Dr. Newton Richardson of the First Christian Church in Amarillo and Dr. John Knowles, area minister for the High Plains area.

Survivors include his wife, Lyda; three sons, Charles W. of San Antonio, Myron L. of Montevideo, Minnesota, and Gerald R. of Amarillo; a brother, Russell of Oakland, California; a sister, Mrs. Coral Kimpton of Townsend, Montana; 9 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren.

WT Faculty Members Form Yarborough Group

A group of faculty members at West Texas State University has formed a "Professors for Ralph Yarborough" organization.

Dr. Charles Townsend, professor of history at WTSU, said the off-campus group is affiliated with the state steering committees for Yarborough. He said the committee is composed of professors acting as private citizens.

Townsend, who led a similar Humphrey-Muskie group in the last presidential year, is chairman of the Yarborough group. A statement by the group says: "The record of Ralph Yarbourough in the United States Senate, a record of positive achievements, entitles Senator Yarbourough to another teram as Senior United States Senator from Texas. Senator Yarborough's accomplishments in the areas of agriculture and ranching, conservation, labor, aid for the aged, educational opportunities for our youth and veterans and civil rights and aid for the cities. Senator Yarborough has also sponsored legislation aimed at solving the problems of crime and narcotcs.

"We believe it wiser at this critical point to support a man of proven leadership and positive accomplishments rather than support the negative candidacy of an unproven man. A change at this time would drastically reduce the influence of Texas in the United States Senate, because Yarborough, as Texas' senior senator, is a member of important senate committees, some of which have never been held by any Texas senator."

Library Club Aids Book Move

The Canyon High School Library Club worked recently to benefit the Canyon City Library in moving books from the city library storeroom to the former Southwestern Bell Telephone Building.

The books moved will be sold in a "book sale" sponsored by the City Library Board during June. All funds from the book sale will go into the building fund for a new Canyon City Library building.

Library club president, Lola Carter, and sponsor, Mrs. Jacqueline Patterson, worked on the project along with members Ralph Newman, Kathy Sherer, Greg Winn, Robin Rhodes and Paula Haberman.

Zurich Orchestra Concert Is Sunday

The Zurich Chamber Orchestra will perform in Canyon Sunday, April 26, at 3 p.m. in the Canyon High School auditorium.

Sponsored by the Canyon Community Concert Association, the orchestra performance will be the final concert of the season and local members are reminded that each membership entitles the member to three local concerts either singly or at one event.

Conducted by Edmond de Stoutz, the orchestra was formed in 1945 and has gained recognition worldwide with countless concerts in Italy, Spain, France and Germany. The group made its first extensive American tour in 1964.

The orchestra began in 1945 as de Stoutz completed his graduate studies at the Zurich Conservatory. He was surrounded by other young musicians who were eager to perform orchestral works while going on with advanced studies at the conservatory. The group soon emerged an ensemble of such polish that public performances were given and the orchestra made such an instant hit that its fame quickly spread throughout Switzerland where subsequent performances were given. In 1951 the first foreign country appearance was given in Milan, Italy and word soon spread to other countries of Europe.

Concert admission Sunday is by membership in the CCA or area CCA groups which are extended reciprocity exchange performances.

Color plans in the workshop are being used on floors, walls, in furnishings, draperies and accent pieces.

Mrs. T.W. Collins has returned from East Texas where she visited with relatives and friends. While out-of-town, Mrs. Collins also saw the Azalea Trail in the areas of Longview, Tyler and Shreveport, Louisiana and reports many beautiful flowers in that area.

Miss. Horton Named RCSP Riding Queen

Miss Linda Horton, 16, was recently elected as riding queen of the Randall County Sheriff's Posse.

Miss Horton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Horton, will represent her club in various District 2 events including a queen's contest for the district title in July at the Range Riders in Amarillo.

She also rides alongside the club president, Blaine Hufnagle, as the RCSP enters the arena at playday events.

Miss Horton, who still rides her first horse "Star," participates in playday events in the barrel races, rings, poles, keyhole race and potato race.

She is a sophomore at Canyon High School and has been a member of the RCSP for 2½ years. In addition to her riding, Miss Horton enjoys sewing and home economics at school.

MISS LINDA HORTON

BSP Sorority Has Session

Chi Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority held a regular meeting Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Lewel Johnston with the vice president, Mrs. Carl Sims, presiding as the meeting was called to order with eight member repeating the opening rituals.

A report on the Founder's Day banquet was given.

The chapter membership voted to raise their portion of a joint scholarship from $50 to $75. The scholarship is given each year to a Canyon High School senior.

Members voted to buy Brenda Van Sickle, the girl sponsored from the Children's Home in Amarillo, a stereo record player for her birthday June 3.

Mrs. Jean Denton, guest speaker, presented the program on "the history of sculpture and painting."

Mrs. Jerry Costly won the door prize and refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. Next meeting for the chapter will be April 29 at Shirley's Glamour Shop with Mrs. George Stevens as hostess.

Secretaries Banquet Is Set Tonite

Tierra Blanca chapter of National Secretaries Association will have an awards banquet tonight, Thursday, at 7 p.m. at the Hunsley Hills Country Club.

Recognized on the program will be the "boss of the year" and the "secretary of the year."

The banquet will highlight Secretary Week activities in the city.

WHY ROBERT MORRIS CAN AND SHOULD BE NEXT SENATOR FROM TEXAS

In 1956, when the United States stood by while the Hungarians were ground down, we had 100 to 1 superiority over the Russians in nuclear power.

In 1962, when President Kennedy made concessions to Castro after his public confrontation, we had 10 to 1 superiority.

In 1965, when we failed to win the Vietnam war and later allowed the North Koreans to seize the Pueblo, we had 4 to 1 superiority.

Some time last year, the Russians passed us in nuclear might. Dr. Edward Teller told us in Dallas recently that the next four years will see this lead grow spectacularly because even if we reverse the trend there will be a four year lag between design and deployment.

The Consequences

Therefore the crises of the next six years will be all the more menacing because our enemy will now have the upper hand.

We need a sense of urgency in the United States Senate.

In What Areas?

1. STRONG DEFENSE: We must expand our ABM program, reconstruct a modern Navy, restore our air power. It was Secretary Robert McNamara's fatuous doctrine of "parity with the Russians" that has put us in this precarious position. WE MUST WORK FOR SUPERIORITY.

2. INTERNAL SECURITY: The powerful Communist apparatus in the United States must be encountered by the Congress. Because they have had little or no opposition, they have moved up the ladder of conquest through the demonstration and riot stages to terror. The next stage is guerrilla warfare. An existing bill, S-12 which will curb the training of potential American guerrillas in Cuba, must be supported. Internal security must be attended to by the Senate.

3. MORAL POLLUTION: Related to this and sometimes with the same cast of characters is the threat from "moral pollution." This is of more immediacy than the menace of air and water pollution. It is currupting our upcoming generation which is experiencing torrents of drugs, pornography, smut, and criminal influences. Until President Nixon gets a good supreme court, the Senate should invoke Article 111, Section 2 of the Constitution which authorizes the Congress to regulate and make exceptions to the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. The Dirksen Bill would exclude that Court from overriding jury decisions in pornography and obscenity cases. Local juries know better what is obscene than Justice Douglas and some of his associates. This same provision should be invoked in other such areas as prayer in school, drug abuse, crimes of passion and internal security.

VIETNAMIZATION: The war in Vietnam should have been won years ago. President Nixon's policy is "Vietnamization." This should be supported but even if it is successful, the Communists will control Laos and be in a position to commit new aggressions in Thailand and elsewhere. We must encourage the formation of an all Asian ground force that will check aggression before it escalates. We cannot allow Southeast Asia to fall. Yet we cannot send another ground army to Asia.

OTHER ISSUES

INFLATION: Inflation is a condition that exists when goods coming to market cannot keep up with demand. It has been caused by reckless governments spending over the years. President Nixon is trying to stop this. Instead of retarding our economy with tight credit and high interest rates, we should be stimulating production. Tight money is depressing our economy, causing business failures and pinching investors. It must be relaxed!

READING: The U.S. Office of Education has told us that more than 25% of all students cannot perform the act of reading sufficiently to get by. This percentage projected to the population of 204 million means that 50 million people, the most extensive and the most pathetic minority in the United States—have a serious problem. Because of the inability of these 50 million people, frustration, failures, dropouts, even juvenile delinquency and crime result. It is a national blight of broad dimensions. These people need someone who knows this problem in the Senate.

IS ROBERT MORRIS QUALIFIED?

Robert Morris played a vital Washington role in the great security struggle of the 1950s. Before that he held high posts in Naval Intelligence working on psychological warfare and counterintelligence. He has written two important books in this area. He knows the Senate where he served as counsel to key committees. He has never compromised. During the fifties he worked closely with President Nixon.

As an educator, he was President of the University of Dallas and founded the University of Plano. At the latter he became steeped in reading and related problems and could speak in the Senate for the 50 million people who are struggling with their reading problems.

He is a lawyer by profession, holds important directorates in business, was a New York City judge, a Naval officer for 20 years, and teacher. His seven children give him motivation for the preservation of our country.

WHAT OF HIS OPPONENT GEORGE BUSH?

His opponent, even though in Washington for more than three years and with a good press, has not identified with the urgent issues on this page. Instead, his principal concern has been in such social engineering ventures as population control which could enervate this land, forced open housing, guaranteed welfare payments, changing the seniority system in the Congress,[©] and voting for the direct election of president and vice president thus tending to change us from a republic to a democracy.

[©] If the seniority system were scrapped, Senator Entland would lose control of Judiciary to either Senator Ted Kennedy or Birch Bax; Senator Russell Long would lose control over Senate Finance which controls tax bills and depreciation allowance to Senator McCarthy Fulbright and Gore. This would be disastrous for Texas.

CAN ROBERT MORRIS WIN IN NOVEMBER?

He has a much greater chance to win than his opponent. Look at the hard mathematics. In 1968, the last national election, Hubert Humphrey and President Nixon each polled 40% of the Texas vote. The American Party polled 20%. Therefore to win the Republicans must capture most of this 20% plus some of the Democrats. Would not the platform set forth on this page be better able to win the third party vote and the vote of Lloyd Bentsen[©], than a record of social engineering?

[©] That is, if Yarbrough does defeat Bentsen.

'69 Yearbook Places 1st In Press Contest

The 1969 edition of "Soaring Wings',, annual publication of Canyon High School, was the first place winner in Class B division yearbooks at the Panhandle High School Press Association meetings during the week end at West Texas State University.

The yearbook received a trophy, according to Charlotte Brantley, 1969 sponsor. Susan Read was editor of the yearbook and Diana Andrews, business manager. Both are presently freshmen students at West Texas State University.

The 1970 yearbook co-editors, Lynda Edwards and Debbie White, were also on last year's staff as was Steve Daugherty, who placed first in yearbook photography contest at the convention.

Placing second in yearbook photography was Brian Stokes, also of Canyon, and Tom Blackburn received a third in editorial writing for the school paper.

In the Class B yearbook contests, Tulia's Hornet placed second and the Whirlwind of Floydada received an honorable mention.

Summer School Questionnaire In Progress For Schools

Surveys are being taken in the Canyon Public Schools in regard to summer school.

Rex Reeves and Gene Howe Elementary Schools sent out parent questionnaires this week along with report cards. The questionnaires, to be turned in as soon as possible, are asking parents their opinions and interest in the specific area of remedial reading and arithmetic.

Oscar Hinger, principal for Rex Reeves, noted that the questionnaire will also be concerned with possible interest in enrichment type studies for students. Announcement will be made following the evaluation of the questionnaires on whether a summer school will be offered.

At Canyon High School, John Sommer, principal, stated that questionnaires have already been sent out, returned and evaluated and "not enough interest was shown in either a remedial or enrichment type study to warrant a summer school."

Junior High principal Dave Corley noted that the survey at junior high showed a lack of interest in summer studies and did not warrant a summer session for students.

Do you put a higher price on an Olds than we do?

Our own surveys indicate that quite a few people think an Olds costs a lot more than it really does. Result? Many people buy an ordinary car and end up with a lot less car and value for their money.

It's so unnecessary, too, because Oldsmobile has many models that are priced right down with so-called low-priced cars. See your Olds dealer. He'll prove that you're closer to Olds than you think.

Cutlass S: The sporty Olds—one of nine Olds models priced under $2995*—right down with a lot of low-priced names. But Cutlass really widens the value gap with standard features like these: Regular-gas Rocket V-8 ☐ Nylon-blend loop-pile carpeting ☐ Foam-padded seats ☐ Deluxe steering wheel ☐ Bias-belted tires ☐ Door side-guard beams ☐ Recessed windshield wipers ☐ Hidden radio antenna.

already have been made."

Barden said although the air control board has little trouble receiving appropriations to carry on work in pollution control, there is a lack of government leadership in some areas.

"Some tend to use this thing as a political football," he said. "This is something that can only hinder progress."

He told the students there is a special need for youth involvement in the fight against pollution.

"It's up to you to carry this fight on," he said. "We need leadership in developing a new technology.

To aid in pollution control, Barden said industry must join with the nation's universities in initiating research on pollution. Industry must also adopt greater use of materials which will disentigrate naturally.

Barden quoted President Nixon as saying the fight against pollution is not a search for villains.

"I don't think we should blame industry, the individual or the automobile," he said. "This is a problem of society, a total problem which must be attacked from every angle."

Three films were shown Tuesday night at a meeting in the Student Union Building attended by about a dozen persons.

Most notable of the films was a movie produced here in the Panhandle by members of the sponsoring group. It was narrated by John Greene.

It leaned heaviest on Hereford where Greene said he saw some of the worst water pollution he had ever seen.

The film showed almost raw sewerage being dumped into Tierra Blanca Creek which empties into Buffalo Lake. It showed dead fish floating down the muddy stream.

Greene praised efforts toward pollution control by the city of Canyon.

The film, some of it taken from the air, also showed scenes of alleged pollution at Borger, Amarillo and Pampa.

come to your school. Ask them what's so good about marijuana.

"Emphasize that psychological dependency can be as dangerous as physiological dependency.

"Tell them marijuana and LSD are against the law."

Hinton said the argument or parallel which many persons draw between the smoking of marijuana and the drinking of alcohol is not valid.

He reminded the educators that there are estimated to be more than 6 million alcoholics in this country. Twenty-six million traffic accidents last year involved alcohol.

He also noted that marijuana cannot be taken in moderation, as can alcohol.

Hinton outlined the various penalties for violations of dangerous drug and narcotics laws.

Yeager...

other words, 30 per cent of the persons would have some sort of high even taking sugar tablets.

Dr. Yeager said there are three factors which have a direct effect on the type drug experience a person has. They are the personality of the individual, the strength of the drug taken and the environment in which the drug was taken.

He also classed four kinds or families of drugs:

Sedatives--barbiturates, alcohol and marijuana.

Narcotics--heroin, opium, morphine.

Those which affect the central nervous system--cafiene, nicotine.

Psychedelic--LSD, PCP, THC, STP.

Dr. Yeager described each drug and its effect physically on the user.

Marijuana, he said, can cause a hypnotic-type state, produce drowsiness. With prolonged usage, he said, the drug can cause a general paranoia and apathy.

The most devastating and horrifying effect of LSD, he said, is the flashback. Flashbacks, or recurring trips even without exposure to the drug, can occur as late as two years after taking LSD.

Both, he said, are not physically addicting, but can become psychologically addictive.

on other people indirectly. Some have a hidden wish for childhood.

Speaking of specific changes in personality noted in drug users, Dr. Jones addressed himself to the marijuana problem.

Although there is not real research on the personality effects of marijuana, he said, many who deal with marijuana users have noted personality changes.

Some, he said, develop a passive attitude or withdrawn personality traits. They are apathetic, they become less aggressive.

He warned that sniffing glue or gasoline can cause permanent organic brain damage to the sniffer.

help him escape from the Amarillo Air Force Base stockade.

Following that, she spent 1 year and 12 days in reform school. There, she learned to panhandle, to steal, to lie, to cheat. And she put into practice those lessons.

She was released from reform school in the summer of 1957. She returned home, married and then ran away from her husband to purchase more drugs. He left her.

In despair, she went to Los Angeles.

"I got a gun, pulled an armed robbery and hit a woman over the head," she said. "I went to jail again, but I posted bond. Then I skipped out on my bond and went to Seattle, Wash."

Her memories of Seattle are terrifying, she says. She saw a young heroin addict die in her arms. The woman's baby, itself an addict, was given to a foster home.

Soon, she moved on to San Francisco and again became involved in narcotics. She stole some doctor's prescriptions and was caught giving them for pills.

When she was put in prison, she began to suffer withdrawal.

"Nothing is more horrifying, more painful than withdrawal," she said. "It was almost unbearable mental and physical pain."

While withdrawing from drugs, she scratched her eye from its socket, pulled her hair out and scratched and clawed herself.

She hasn't touched drugs since. But, she hasn't gotten over the heartbreak.

"Today I can't have children because of narcotics and drugs," she said. "Men turn their backs on me because I've been a prostitute, an addict."

Nancy urged the educators to become involved.

"We must become involved because its our children, our family, our neighbors. If you can't help them then you might as well not be part of the human race," she said.

Commissioner Bill Butler in whose precinct the road lies told the group that he is interested but does not know whether he will have the money to do the work in the immediate future.

"A lot of other things come first," said Butler. "If we have the money we're going to do it. We've got a lot of resurfacing to do. The problem is just money. The only thing I can tell you is that I am favorable to it."

In other busines, the court agreed to pay Tax Assessor-Collector Audrey Bruse 10 cents a mile toward her expenses in attending a conference in McAllen May 3-6.

Bill Wilson, in charge of court house maintenance, was authorized to build some shelving in the basement of the new court house annex.

Commissioners tabled until next week consideration of the county tax rate.

fields at other universities.

The university's new Board of Regents approved the proposed School of Agriculture last Jan. 23 and an application was submitted to the Coordinating Board Feb. 16.

At its January meeting the regents also authorized establishing a Meat Animal Foundation, a regionally endowed organization to furnish some development and expansion funds for the School of Agriculture.

The first unit to be funded will be $250,000 for a meats laboratory, offices and laboratory space, Juniper said.

West Texas State had 482 agriculture majors last fall and the number is expected to reach at least 700 in 1972, Smallwood said.

"A School of Agriculture gives the university three advantages over the present departmental program," he said.

"It will allow us to strengthen our majors because they will be in separate departments," Smallwood said. "It will allow us to serve better our students and the region in agriculture. It will improve the image and stature of WTSU's agricultural program."

In support of its proposal, West Texas State told the Coordinating Board the region served by the university has:

—The largest agricultural income of any region of the state, approximately one-half billion (b) dollars a year.

—Become a major meat packing area of the nation with the annual kill capacity increasing from 307-400 head in 1960 to 3.3 million head this year.

—84 per cent of the irrigated acreage in Texas.

—The top 10 counties in wheat production, nine of the 10 leading sorghum producing counties and eight of the top 10 cotton producing counties.

The board was further told that Texas was expected to become the leading cattle feeding state in the nation this year with 82 per cent of all cattle fed in Texas located in the region served by WTSU.

The one-time capacity of feedlots in the region has increased in the last three years from 600,000 head to 1.36 million head.

Juniper said a separate school would enhance "superior faculty recruitment in agriculture."

"Cooperative endeavors between institutions such as Texas A&M University and Texas Tech University would be more feasible and conveniently negotiated through a professional School of Agriculture," he added.

Juniper said no additional undergraduate programs are under consideration at this time for the new school.

Smallwood, in addition to being dean of the school, will be head of the Department of Animal Science until Sept. 1, 1971.

Dr. Smallwood said he will recommend Dr. Jim Green to become head of the plant science Department. He said he will recommend Dr. Kenneth Wendland, who is to join the WTSU staff next fall, be named acting head of the Department of Agricultural Business and Economics.

Smallwood said the three designated majors will aid in the placement of graduates.

"Employers request a designated major," he said. "Although the graduates have been placed in the past, the students and faculty have had to explain their concentrated area of study to the industries and prospective employers."

The agriculture faculty will total 11 next fall with three other members on leave for graduate study.

Smallwood, a native of Red Oak. Okla., received a bachelor of science degree from Oklahoma State University and a master of science and a doctor of philosophy from Texas A&M.

He was a county agricultural agent with the Oklahoma State University Extension Service from 1950-1954 and was head of the agriculture department at Murray State College, Tishomingo, Okla., from 1954 to 1958.

Smallwood is a member of the National Association of Livestock Judges, American Society of Animal Science and the National Association of Colleges and Teachers of Agriculture.

Food warming pan holds a constant 200 degree heat . . . keeps food hot without boiling. Unique aluminum container collects natural juices and gravies.

THE MODERN ELECTRIC CHAR-O

Great flavor . . . Char-O gives flavor, taste and aroma superior to charcoal cooking. Grill housings are vented for moisture control. No more waiting time for that "just right" heat.

THE MODERN ELECTRIC READY-LITE

On at night . . . off by day. Dependable electric photo cell automatically turns your Ready-lite on and off . . . operates for just 2c a night. A Ready-lite permits you to change to colorful bulbs during holiday seasons . . . dresses up your premises and provides light for safety in front or back yards.

BUY BOTH FOR $107.50

THE MODERN ELECTRIC CHAR-O

Char-O gives you portability and convenience . . . easily moved to any convenient outdoor outlet. Handy size and portability make it ideal for use around the pool, on the porch, balcony, or on the patio.

CHOICE OF COLORS: BLACK, BURNT ORANGE, AVOCADO, OR HARVEST GOLD

THE MODERN ELECTRIC READY-LITE

Every Ready-lite has a convenient 120 volt receptacle that lets you plug in hedge clippers, lawnmowers extension lights and, of course, the modern ELECTRIC CHAR-O. Choice of black or white Ready-lite. And, Ready-lites are completely installed when bought singly or in combination with Char-O.
